CAMBODIA : ADB issues guide to local bond market

Aiming to inject momentum into their nascent debt markets, the Asian Development Bank (ADB) released yesterday bond market guides for Cambodia and Myanmar. Titled 'ASEAN+3 bond market guide', the publications provide practical and detailed information on the investment climate, rules, laws, opportunities, and characteristics of the bond markets of the two Southeast Asian countries. Yasuyuki Sawada, ADB's chief economist, said the bond market are crucial in increasing economic growth as they contribute to government revenue. "Strong domestic bond markets are critical for a country's growth and development," said Mr. Sawada. "The bond markets in Cambodia and Myanmar are still in the early development stages, but as they evolve, they will help to fund much-needed infrastructure development and make businesses resilient against global financial shocks". With diplomatic and trade ties with the East Asian giant at an all-time high, Cambodia has announced plans to build a Cambodian cultural village in Beijing and more trade centres in different Chinese provinces. Speaking on Wednesday during the opening of this year's China-Cambodia Business Forum in Tianjin, China, Minister of Commerce Pan Sorasak said the new trade centres will help build engagement with Chinese businesspeople and investors. "We have also decided to build a Cambodian-Chinese cultural village in Beijing, which will be completed soon. "We have also recently opened a trade center in Xi'an in Guangzhou province. "We will continue to open more of these in other Chinese provinces to promote investment and disseminate information for the benefit of Chinese businesspeople and investors interested in exploring opportunities in Cambodia," he said. Cambodian exports to China rose sharply during

CAMBODIA : Expressway developer enlists UK consultancy

The China Road and Bridge Corporate (CRBC), the company in charge of building the new expressway connecting Phnom Penh to Sihanoukville province, reached a deal with United Kingdom company Hunton & Williams LLP, who will become its lead transaction counsel. CRBC, one of the world's largest construction companies, signed the toll-risk concession agreement with the Cambodian government on January 11, 2018, in the presence of the Chinese premier and the Cambodian prime minister, in Phnom Penh. Hunton & Williams LLP announced its role as lead transaction counsel to CRBC in a $1.8 billion public-private partnership (PPP) development of a 190-kilometer expressway in Cambodia, according to a company statement. "It is truly rewarding to be involved in a project of such magnitude. Connecting the only deep-sea port in Cambodia with the capital, the expressway is expected to transform the nation's economy," said Kirk Lovric, who leads the Hunton team advising CRBC for the last 18 months. The airline has scheduled four flights a week for the route, the first of which took off on Sunday. CAMBODIA : New building seeks to enhance local construction standards

The World Trade Center Phnom Penh (WTCPP), a multipurpose complex built by Japanese investors, will be finished by mid-2021, serving as a centre to promote exchanges between Cambodia and Japan, particularly for the construction sector. This project was developed by WTCPP Management, a joint investment company of URATA Corporation and a developer in Japan. Set in the Tuol Tompong neighborhood, the building will have 23 stories above ground and four below, with a total of 43,000 square metres dedicated to hotels, office and retail space. It will be the first Japanese construction project in the area. Kazuya Urata, CEO of Urata SE and WTCPP, said the new project aims to promote cross-cultural relations between Japan and the kingdom. "Our core project is for a new city development which will create new international business sites, introduce Japanese construction techniques and establish cross-cultural relations," said Mr. Urata. INDONESIA : Indonesia's fintech lending boom exploits the lack of bank loans

Fintech firms, offering loans of as little as a few hundred dollars, are seeing a spike in lending in Indonesia where tens of millions of people have little or no access to bank credit helping alleviate a financing shortfall estimated at more than $73 billion. The emergence of these peer-to-peer (P2P) lending platforms has so far been welcomed by Indonesia's financial regulators which see them as offering a much needed service to cash-strapped businesses and consumers at a time when Southeast Asia's biggest economy has been hobbled by sluggish bank lending. Wimboh Santoso, head of Indonesia's financial regulator (OJK), said while the trend was still a drop in the ocean of overall lending, more than 250,000 people had taken out loans through fintech. Around 30 P2P firms had extended 2.6 trillion rupiah ($193.8 million) in lending as of January 2018, compared with just 247 billion rupiah of lending in December 2016. Another 36 more firms were waiting to be approved, he added. (Reuters)

Once a Malay graveyard and a British military base in the colonial period, Sentosa was developed as a tourist attraction in the 1970s, when it was enlarged through land reclamation to merge with two neighbouring islets. It was during the 2000s, when the government actively sought to persuade Asia's jetsetters to take up residence in Singapore, that the Sentosa Cove residential enclave was developed. (Reuters)
