More than 40 percent of Cambodia's rice exports go through informal channels according to a recent UN estimate, while rubber plantations and processing companies have complained that small-scale farmers get higher prices for their crops by selling to Vietnamese brokers instead of complying with Cambodia's tax laws. (Phnom Penh Post)

CAMBODIA : E-commerce Law may not pass in 2018: Ministry

Cambodia will have to wait a little longer to have an E-commerce Law, with lawmakers still working on the latest draft after deciding to include the securities market in the much-anticipated legislation. The Ministry of Commerce submitted a draft of the E-commerce Law to the Council of Ministers for approval last year, and it was widely expected that the law would pass in early 2018. However, lawmakers resumed work on the law recently after it was decided that it should also cover the newly-established securities market, said Mao Thora, Secretary of State at the Ministry of Commerce. "We are still working on it because we decided to increase its scope by also covering the securities market," he said. "Adding the securities markets meant that we had to consult with numerous local and international experts, which is taking a lot of time." (Khmer Times)

CAMBODIA : Real estate sector tackles financial crimes

Aiming to enhance transparency in the real estate sector, the Cambodian Financial Intelligence Unit and the General Department of Cadastre and Geography on Wednesday signed an agreement on combatting terrorism financing and money laundering by enhancing the exchange of information. This is the tenth such agreement signed by Cafiu, a body of the National Bank of Cambodia, with other local institutions to tackle financial crimes. "The agreement will reduce the threat of financial crimes in the real estate sector in Cambodia," said Ngeth Chou, a local economist and a real estate business owner. "I believe such collaborations are effective tools to put an end to this type of illegal activities, and deter people from engaging in money laundering," he said. According to Asia / Pacific Group on Money Laundering's latest report, Cambodia has a number of qualities that make it particularly vulnerable to money laundering, including a cash economy and porous borders. (Khmer Times)

CHINA : China raises ZTE sanctions with visiting US trade

China raised with a visiting U.S. trade delegation the issue of a ban by the United States on its companies selling components and software to ZTE Corp for seven years, the Ministry of Commerce said on Friday. BEIJING: China raised with a visiting U.S. trade delegation the issue of a ban by the United States on its companies selling components and software to ZTE Corp for seven years, the Ministry of Commerce said on Friday. Washington imposed sanctions on ZTE last month for breaking an agreement to punish employees after the Chinese maker of smartphones and telecoms gear shipped U.S. goods to Iran in violation of U.S. sanctions. ZTE said the ban was unacceptable and threatened its survival. The Commerce ministry said Chinese officials made solemn representations to the U.S. delegation that took part in bilateral trade negotiations in Beijing this week. U.S. officials said they attached great value to China's representations and would report back to U.S. President Donald Trump on the matter, the ministry said. (Channel New Asia)

US : U.S. jobs growth expected to regain momentum in April

U.S. job growth likely accelerated in April after a weather-related slowdown in the previous month, with the unemployment rate expected to drop to near a 17-1/2-year low of 4.0 percent. The Labor Department's closely watched employment report on Friday is also expected to show steady wage growth, which would add to signs of building inflation pressures and likely keep the Federal Reserve on a gradual path of monetary policy tightening. The U.S. central bank on Wednesday left interest rates unchanged and said it expected annual inflation to run close to its "symmetric" 2 percent target over the medium term. Economists interpreted symmetric to mean policymakers would not be too concerned with inflation overshooting the target. Non-farm payrolls probably increased by 192,000 jobs last month, according to a Reuters survey of economists. Payrolls rose by 103,000 positions in March, the smallest gain in six months, which economists dismissed as payback after unseasonably mild weather boosted hiring by 326,000 jobs in February. The anticipated decline in the unemployment rate from 4.1 percent in March would put it at a level last seen in December 2000 and within striking distance of the Fed's forecast for 3.8 percent by the end of this year. (Reuters).
