CAMBODIA: CSX prepares for construction firm's Growth Board listing

An undisclosed construction-related company that wishes to list on the Cambodia Securities Exchange's (CSX) secondary Growth Board and raise money to expand its operations is forging ahead with internal IPO (initial public offering) compliance work, with assistance from a "technical team" from the local bourse's CEO Hong Sok Hour confirmed this to The Post on July 24, but declined to provide additional details. However, in an early-May interview, he disclosed that the local stock exchange was working with four SMEs from the construction and tech-related domains on listing requirements. "We've been working with them, explaining some of the listing processes and what they should do to prepare ... one of the four – from the construction sector – will be ready before year's end. "They have prepared well for the listing, in terms of corporate governance and internal procurement. They'll be listing on the Growth Board," he confirmed, adding that the three other companies will require additional time to get ready. "I encourage local SMEs to pursue financing by listing on the market, everyone well understands that many businesses have been facing financial difficulties in light of the Covid-19 pandemic. "The addition of more companies to the bourse – those seeking funds for business expansions or sustainability – will highlight the capital market as a key source of funds," Sok Hour said. The Growth Board, a secondary platform targeted for SMEs (small- and medium-sized enterprises), was launched in late 2015 to remove certain listing hurdles and better serve companies with significant growth potential but limited access to capital or financial resources. However, it has failed to draw issuers over the years, despite the Main Board's continued expansion. The Securities and Exchange Regulator of Cambodia (SERC) requires firms to have shareholders' equity of at least $500,000 to list on the Growth Board, as opposed to $7.5 million on the primary board. Companies that list on the Growth Board are also required to release one year of audited financial results, compared to the 2 years needed for the Main Board. Additionally, the results must show a positive net profit or positive operating cash flow with gross profit margin of at least 10 %. In March, the SERC, UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) and South Korea's Global Green Growth Institute (GGGI) launched the Cambodia Sustainable Bond Accelerator programmer, in collaboration with Asian Development Bank (ADB) trust fund Credit Guarantee and Investment Facility (CGIF) and Mauritius-based GuarantCo Ltd, part of the London-headquartered Private Infrastructure Development Group (PIDG), according to ESCAP. In a June 26 statement, ESCAP noted that three local firms chosen to receive assistance from the support programmed to pursue their goals of raising a total of roughly $95 million through the sale of green or sustainability bonds. "The sustainable bond size of three potential issuers collectively is around $95 million, which is close to 50 % of the current plain bond listed in Cambodia," GGGI director-general Frank Rijsberman quoted as saying in the statement. 2 of the companies are microfinance deposit-taking institution (MDI) Amret Plc and public-listed industrial park operator Royal Group Phnom Penh SEZ (PPSP), which aim to issue $50 million and $20 million sustainability bonds, respectively. Real estate firm Golden Tree Co Ltd (GT), meanwhile, is looking to offer its second green bond, to the tune of $25 million "for green building development", the statement said. GT on January 19 listed the Kingdom's first green bond, raising 6.0721 billion riel ($1.46 million) to expand its business, in what has been hailed as a milestone in the CSX's development. Without elaborating further, the statement concluded: "By the end of 2023, ESCAP and its partners look forward to supporting three new green and sustainable bond listings in Cambodia. According to the CSX's Sok Hour, as of June 27, 10 stocks listed on the local bourse – eight on the Main Board and 2 on the secondary Growth Board – raising a combined "$124 million". Additionally, "$323.5 million" worth of corporate bonds issued on the CSX. (Khmer time)

CAMBODIA: Rubber exports go up 42.1% H1

Cambodia earned $324 million from the exports of natural rubber and rubber articles in the January to June half-year (H1) period of 2023, an increase of 42.1 % compared to the same period last year, according to the latest trade data of the General Department of Customs and Excise (GDCE). For January to June 2022, Cambodia earned only $228 million from the exports of rubber goods. The latest data, however, showed that for June 2023 alone, Cambodia earned $63.76 million from rubber exports, an increase of 44.8 %, compared to $44 million in June 2022 as the rising trend in exports that started in the latter half of last year continued into the first half of this year as well. The surge in rubber exports this year is also remarkable as Cambodia's total exports recorded just about 0.8 % growth for the half-year period until June 2023. It noted that Cambodia earned $541.66 million from the export of rubber and rubber articles in 2022, recording a growth of 28.3 % compared to the previous year. The Cambodian rubber market mainly consists of China, Vietnam, Malaysia, Singapore, India, and the EU. Meanwhile, the global rubber market also ended the first half of the year on a positive note. According to the monthly statistical report released by Kuala Lumpur-based Association of Natural Rubber Producing Countries (ANRPC) on July 21, the mid-year outlook of the global natural rubber market was balanced and positive. Both supply and demand of natural rubber have registered a growth of 0.8 %, year-to-year. For June 2023, Thailand continued to be the biggest producer of natural rubber, followed by Indonesia, Vietnam, China, India, Malaysia and Cambodia. In 2023, global natural rubber market anticipated to reach 14.693 million tons for production while consumption projected at 14.738 million tons. While the natural rubber market weighed on by the fundamentals of the produce itself, other external factors such as inflationary pressures, geopolitical tensions and global crude oil market could play an influential role in the rubber market, including in the price of natural rubber. According to market experts, the market for natural rubber continues to face major economic headwinds in 2023, especially due to the less than expected growth of the Chinese economy in the second quarter of the year. China is the biggest producer of tire in the world. According to recent reports, China's economy expanded by 6.3 % in the second quarter year-on-year, falling short of market expectations as export demand remained low and declining property prices affected consumer confidence. Economists had forecast earlier that the Chinese economy would grow just over 7 %. However, for the second quarter of the year alone, growth slowed to 0.8 % from a 2.2 % quarter-on-quarter growth registered in the first quarter. Adding to this are the impacts of the prolonged Russia-Ukraine war and high borrowing costs from interest rate hikes. "Stubborn inflation and a projected slowdown in the recovery of the global economy in 2023 are major concerns," said Heng Guan, Secretary-General of ANRPC in a report earlier this year. CAMBODIA: Japanese hi-tech firms to help develop agriculture in Cambodia

The Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO) and Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency (JAXA) will jointly host a symposium in Cambodia to introduce eight Japanese companies with cutting-edge technologies to local private sector firms and other institutions that work in the development of the country's agriculture, according to JETRO officials. According to the officials, representatives from Agribuddy Limited, Asuzeto Singapore Pte Ltd/Asuence Ince (Japan), Green Carbon Inc, Nippon Koei Co Ltd, Sagri Co Ltd, Synspective Inc, Tenchijin Inc and Yanmar Agribusiness Co Ltd will meet relevant local firms and institutions on August 11, 2023 in Phnom Penh. Thay Tho, Research Manager of JETRO Phnom Penh told Khmer Times that Green Carbon and Sagri will work with Cambodian farmers on carbon credit development and sale, while the former will employ alternate wetting and drying technology or AWD that control the usage of water quantity in the crop fields such as rice fields to reduce the methane emissions. "Normally, some bacteria exist in soil, but we do not know what type of bacteria they are. If there is much water in crop fields, those bacteria will increase methane that emits into the atmosphere. So, this technology will help farmers to realize the quantity of methane emissions from the soil or water with satellite data," said Tho. Tho pointed out that Green Carbon will sell the carbon credit to companies in Japan under the Joint Crediting Mechanism (JCM) between Cambodia and Japan, which requires the sellers to share the profits from selling the carbon credit to the companies themselves and farmers in Cambodia. "The profit will be shared between the firm and farmers they deal with," he said. The firm will introduce an application or app that is capable to provide recommendations to farmers on specific quantities of water to be reduced methane emissions. So, the amount of methane emissions that will be reduced will be placed as carbon credit for sale," said Tho, adding that Green Carbon will also help farmers manage the quality of their unused fields. "Secondly, it means that if farmers do not use their fields after harvesting their crops, the company will also introduce technologies to farmers on how to manage their unused fields to maintain the balance between methane and nitrogen that is represented by N, which will also help reduce the methane emissions from the soil into the atmosphere with negative effects. Tho said Sagri—a Japanese university start-up that provides soil analysis and carbon credit business using satellite data and Artificial Intelligence (AI)—would employ AI to detect soil conditions from satellite data and uses this data to suggest whether Cambodian fertilizers should reduce or increase fertilizers with data analysis presented in another application. "Farmers can download an application that will enable them to decide how much fertilizer they should use or reduce to know the reasonable quantity that fits their size of cropping fields without excessive level, which means they would not spend their money uselessly and themuch-polluting gas emissions will less and less in the atmosphere and the gap will be able to be sold as carbon credit either," said Tho.
